The Education (School Day and School Year) Regulations (1999) require all maintained schools to open for teaching for 190 days a year, offering 380 sessions. This calendar sets out dates for 195 school days, with an additional 2 days for flexibility. These extra days allow governing boards to determine whether to close the school on specific religious holidays or to extend breaks, such as Christmas or summer, bringing the total to 197 days. Pupils are to be released for 5 days for staff development (INSET), which can be taken as full inset days or split into equivalent twilight sessions.
